'Written in a clear and straightforward fashion that is guaranteed to make you think, as well as encouraging constructive and engaging modes of writing that will improve your connection to your audience.' Professor Graham Crow, University of Southampton In this new edition the authors show students how to read critically and how to write using critical techniques. This book is a 'must-have' resource for postgraduate students and early-career academics. It has been expanded and updated to include: - A range of examples encompassing disciplinary areas including linguistics, education, business and management - Commentaries on using e-resources and features of e-research - New and additional material available online including access to journal articles This book is for postgraduate students, methods course tutors and researchers. Praise for first edition: A very clear, accessible introduction that will be invaluable to postgraduate students trying to engage with reading and writing in a critical way' - R.M. Lee, Professor of Social Research Methods, Royal Holloway University of London
